

In 1911 the John Roffler family moved to a new home built by Roffler in downtown Camas. While living in this house they had a second child, Harold, born in 1915. John Roffler II is a two-story, two-bedroom house that features a three-bay porch supported paired posts set on partially, enclosed balustrade. The half turret with the tent roof is an important Roffler feature.

8. Henry Adelbert Knapp House, 637 NE Everett Street

Directions: From John Roffler II House, drive west on NE First Avenue to NE Everett Street. Turn right and proceed north on NE Everett Street crossing NE Sixth Avenue up hill to end of street. Knapp House sits on northwest corner.

In 1913 John Roffler designed and helped build the lovely Queen Anne Style "Knapp House". Henry Adelbert Knapp was the son of early Grass Valley pioneer, Henry Monroe Knapp, a four-term member of the Washington State Legislature who was present in 1889 at the signing of the Washington State Constitution.

Like the Bauman House, the Knapp House is based on classical architecture. See the strong triangular elements in the roof form and porch pediment supported by Doric columns. The encircling porch is uncommon in this area.
